| The AAP recognizes the commitment athletes make to long-term training and competition programs and seeks to relieve some of the financial pressures associated with participation in international sport. In particular, the AAP provides direct financial support to Canadian high-performance athletes.  |                  |              |                |              |          |                                       |  |
